"Great care should be used in the selection of Flavoring Extracts. Cakes, Pies, Puddings, ice creams, etc., depend upon their FLAVOR for their success; hence, only the most HEALTHFUL and PURE kinds of Extracts should be used.

THE SUPERIORITY of these Extracts consists in their PERFECT PURITY and GREAT STRENGTH. They are extracted free from the poisonous oils and acids which exist both in the composition of many of the fruitless fruit flavors now in the market.

THE JUDICIAL ELECTION.

The Republican Convention yesterday nominated Henry W. W. Farwell and Henry H. Booth as Judges of the Circuit Court. It affords us pleasure to say that both these gentlemen are competent and unexceptionable in every point of view. It is altogether probable that they, and Mr. Lambert Tree, will be elected, in which event we shall continue to enjoy the services of a high-toned and incorruptible judiciary.

Mr. Farwell is a member of the firm of Goodrich, Farwell & Smith. A man of retiring habits and close application, he has never made himself conspicuous before the public; but to the more thoughtful portion of the community this will be an additional recommendation for the position for which he has been nominated.

Mr. Booth is the Professor of Law in the University of Chicago, in which position he has commended himself very warmly to the younger members of the profession, and, at the same time, has won the respect of the bar generally. All unite in pronouncing him well qualified, both as regards intellectual attainments and moral firmness, for the position of Judge.

The public may safely rest assured that we did not hold ourselves committed to support the nomination of any incompetent merely because they were nominated. We have waited the selection of able and upright lawyers for the bench, and have been fully determined to support no others. We believe that those qualifications are secured in the persons of Messrs. Farwell and Booth and we shall, therefore, support them, and also Mr. Tree, so far as we may be privileged to support a third candidate. We believe the ticket will be thoroughly strong, and, as a good service.

THE RIVER AND HARBOR BILL.

The House of Representatives has passed a bill, commonly known as the River and Harbor bill, which provides for, perhaps, one of the most reckless and unjustifiable expenditures of the public money ever committed by any legislative assembly.

The bill appropriates, directly or other wise, $250,000 for continuing the work on the Louisville and Portland Canal. That canal cost $5,000,000. Fifteen years ago it ceased to do enough business to pay for keeping it in repair. This commerce which once made it profitable to a canal had left the river and had resorted to the railroads. Congress then appropriated the entire earnings of the canal to any person who would undertake it. Thus, for the third time, Congress has been importuned to pay this debt and expend $1,500,000 more money charging the debt, for years ago, forgotten by everybody, at a profit of $250,000 to this work, and now the House of Representatives has voted as much more. The Ohio River has recently been bridged at the Louisville Canal, and what little use there was for such a canal has been completely obviated. The canal answered all purposes of navigation when steamboats were the only mode of transportation, but now, when steamboats have left the Ohio River for years, it is not worth to Congress literal acceptably to a request to enlarge the canal to admit steamers which are not making admission. The folly and wanton waste of money shown by this appropriation is exhibited by the fact that neither the city of Louisville, nor the Board of Trade, nor any other body, private or corporate, would accept the canal as a free gift, and be compelled to pay the expense of opening and shutting its locks, and of superintendence. The company is a direct creation from the National Treasury to give some contractor one of two years job.

Upon the brink of the Falls of St. Anthony a number of gorges have built saw mills. These mills are so arranged that the logs enter on the upper side of the mill, are caught by machinery, sawed, and pass out at the other end in the shape of lumber, which is then built into rafts, and sent down the river. The stone over which the water falls is wearing away rapidly, and, unless checked, will utterly destroy these mills or require their removal further up the stream. The Eastern Congressmen and Senators, who supported that this wearing away of the rocks could be arrested by putting an apron upon them, thus protecting them against the action of the water. He also reported that a canal might be built around the falls, and, if the canal were large enough, navigation might be continued above the falls by vessels arriving there from below. The House of Representatives, guided by the policies of the mill-owners, has appropriated $150,000 to put an apron on the falls. In other words, has voted that much money for a purely private purpose.

The House has also voted $150,000 to build a canal around the Illinois River, from Portage City to the mouth of the river, thus which will cost $6,000,000; and, if the work is ever completed, which is merely the entering wedge of a big job to sell to the government the property of a private canal company whose stock is at present of little value, will have cost ten times as much.

The last Legislature of Illinois voted away to a railroad company, the land lying at the bottom of Lake Michigan, and in front of the city of Chicago. Against that appropriation the city of Chicago has protested. It is intended, of course, to build an outer harbor in the lake. As it now stands, the outer harbor is the property of a private railroad corporation. Yet this Congress has voted to this same Illinois Legislature, in the shape of a gift, $100,000 to be expended in the construction of that outer harbor. The work is to be done by the corporation, for whose benefit? The corporation is a direct gratuity to the railroad company, which, at the public expense, will be able to enclose and appropriate to its exclusive use a portion of the submerged lands.

In the list of expenditures for the coming year by the city of Chicago, is an item of $90,000 for dredging and keeping in order the river of the North Branch. This money is to be raised by taxation upon the people of this city. We have thirty miles of river which is navigable, of which is locally used by, but half the property owners on the North Branch, and, in the national sense, is held as outer harbor, to be held and owned by Municipal corporation.

The bill, in like manner, expends the public money on rivers of other private lots, making the Western Pier, for the benefit of lot in the Lagoon and harbors of the country.

In Congress, by way of bestowing the public fund, usually so small a by by passing $60,000 for Gilmont harbor, and, finally, the House voted the money to build a harbor of this kind.

The House of Representatives which voted that bill in the same breath that it voted to reduce taxes, and the government would not have revenue. This is the same House which voted to tax steel rails 71 per cent, and to impose the duty on cotton cloth, 70 to 80 per cent, which, in the same breath, refused to share the taxes on the clothing and the utensils of labor; which refused to take the tax off horse-shoes and nails, and off the cotton, sides and upper-leather, and off the wooden ties and other materials of the people. But when it came to the taxes on the distillers, and of the money thus raised by taxes, it was lavish in its bounties to every party constituent that asked to have his self-built job and real estate improved, and his property increased at the public expense. A more plausible exhibition of the profligacy and venality of the party in the House of Representatives to have charge of the public money was never made. Not in the wide sweep the bill. It is stated (in round numbers) that the aggregate of the appropriations in any year) that of the $6,000,000 appropriated, the West gets $5,000,000

Thank you for nothing! Speaking not for the West, generally, but for the taxpayers generally, for the taxpayers of the West, generally, but for the taxpayers generally, for the taxpayers of the West, generally, but for the taxpayers generally, for the taxpayers of

AND PROCEEDING THROUGH THE ATLANTIC—SECOND GAME.

NEW YORK, June 14.—The glorious uncertainty of base ball was finely illustrated in the Capitoline Grounds to-day in the contest for the championship between the champion Atlantics of Brooklyn, and the famous Red Stockings. The throng of spectators was even greater than on the previous day, and estimates as to the number varied from 15,000 to 18,000. Among the throng, and this at the odds of 10 to 1 that the Atlantics would win, there were many who had a little money on the Cincinnatians. Betting was very lively, and the odds were offered into requisition. Shortly after, the contest began, the Atlantics occupying the grounds, vice being already in full swing. The ball was thrown up at half-past two, and the ball went in a way that astonished the Atlantics, who, with the exception of Leonard, were completely overmastered by the skill of the visitors. The game was called at half-past four in a heap, the score being 24 to 18, in favor of the Cincinnatians. The game was especially interesting by the skill of the visitors, and the Atlantics were completely outdone. The game was called in consequence of the darkness, and the umpire was unable to see the ball. The game was called at half-past four, and, at the request of the Atlantics, it was agreed that the game should be called in a way that astonished the Atlantics, who, though
